

Manager's Comment

The financial markets have had a mini-crash this month, with all equity indices down 10% at some point. The need to raise rates in the face of out-of-control inflation is behind this new bearish leg that has led the major stock markets to register new lows for 2022. The bond crash we have been experiencing since the beginning of the year will go down in financial history. This month alone, interest rates have risen by more than 0.5% on both sides of the Atlantic, not to mention England, whose rates and currency are now behaving like those of an emerging country.

The decline of the euro is becoming spectacular (below parity at 0.97) and the strength of the dollar is such that the Japanese central bank has already had to intervene once to try to stabilize the yen. The yuan is sinking significantly, to its lowest level in 10 years, which adds to the uncertainties about the real situation of the Chinese economy. Faced with the risk of recession, commodities have continued to fall and the price of oil has fallen back below its pre-Russian invasion levels.

Although equity indices look oversold at the end of the month, we retain a cautious stance: an (increasingly likely) recession is not yet fully priced in our view, and another potential energy shock linked to a complete embargo on Russian oil looms large.

Beginning of September, we sold our US Small Caps and bought Low Volatility equities to lower our Beta. We then decided to lower our US Dollar exposure by selling 6-months Forwards. End of the month, we sold a small part of US Equities and bought Japanese Equities to benefit from a potential rebound of the region as well as its currency. Finally, we sold Out-of-the-Money Puts on the S&P500 and the Eurostoxx50 as we feel confident to buy the market if it decreases while benefiting from high volatilities to collect premium.

Notes: (1) Source data: Bloomberg, Banque Degroof Petercam Luxembourg. Value evolution is based on historical data, which offer no guarantee of future returns.

(2) Source data: Bloomberg. Performance are calculated on a cumulative basis for: (i) monthly period; (ii) year-to-date (period from the 1st of January of the current year till the report date); (iii) the year 2020; and on actuarial basis for periods of over one year return. The reinvestment of the gross dividends is taken into account for the calculation of the returns. Sub-fund Inception date: 16/10/2017. Figures indicated above do not include commissions possibly linked to potential entry or exit fees nor taxes. Returns are based on historical data, which offer no guarantee of future returns.

(3) Volatility is defined as a statistical measure of the dispersion of returns. Volatility is measured as the variance between returns from the sub-funds. Volatility is annualized and calculated on a daily basis since inception. Maximum drawdown is defined as the maximum observed loss from a peak to a trough of the sub-fund Net Asset Value, before a new peak is attained. Maximum drawdown is an indicator of downside risk calculated since inception. The Sharpe ratio is used to help investors understand the return of an investment compared to its risk. The ratio is calculated since inception as the annualized return per unit of annualized volatility.

Risk Indicator -SRRRI (Synthetic Risk and Reward Indicator)

The above risk level is calculated on the basis of the sub-fund's volatility over the medium term (5 years) or on a simulation if the sub-fund was created within that period. The volatility of the sub-fund may fluctuates over time, which may change its risk level.

The SRRRI accounts for the market risk and risk on capital. The sub-fund does not guarantee a protection on the capital invested by investors and therefore investors' capital fluctuates overtime. The risk/return profil indicated above can be essentially explained by the presence of equity in the portfolio.

For more information concerning the risks, please refer to the prospectus and KIID.

Risks that are not necessarily included in SRRRI but which may lead to NAV changes

- Liquidity risk: Risk that positions cannot be liquidated in time at reasonable prices.
- Operational risks: the sub-fund may lose some or all its money in case of failure in assets custody, fraud, corruption, political action or any other undisable events.
- Management risk: under abnormal market conditions, the usual management techniques may be ineffective or unfavourable.
- Counterparty risk: the subfund can lose money as a result of the failure of a market player with which it does business
- Credit risk: risk associated with bonds becoming worthless when the issuer of the bond is not able to repay its debt on maturity.
- Concentration risk: investment policy ensures a diversification of portfolio concentration risk by limiting investment at 30% of total assets in a single sector.
- Derivatives risk: some derivatives may increase the volatility of the subfund or expose the subfund to losses that are higher than the price of the derivatives
